Come on, you Whiskerinos! El Dorado County is prepared to entertain you on Tuesday!

Details of the reception of between 500 and 600 Whiskerinos who are coming to El Dorado County on Tuesday from the Bay District and from Sacramento, were completed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directorate on Thursday night.

Barker on publicity; and Guy E. Wentworth on display of gold nuggets.

Here's the program for the day: Whiskerinos leave Sacramento at 8 a. m. Tuesday on special train and by car and proceed to Folsom where there will be a short band concert and speaking program; continue then to El Dorado for another program; arrive in Placerville shortly before noon.

Welcome to the visitors at the station; as many as possible of Placerville residents are asked to dress in old-time costumes for the day; members of the Soroptimists Club will present gold nuggets to the visitors as souvenirs.

Display Relics On Tuesday

Merchants Asked To Use Show Windows To Exhibit Pioneer Items

Merchants of the community were being urged today to use their display windows on Tuesday for an exhibition of such pioneer relics of the county as they are able to get hold of.

L. P. Anderson, chairman of this phase of the recreation of the Whiskerino excursion to the county on Tuesday and said that the relics should be of great interest to the visitors and that showing them in the store windows will be a generous display of hospitality on the part of Placerville business men.

"After the train ride and the automobile trip to Coloma, the visitors will want to 'stretch their legs' and an exhibition of some of our relics in the store windows will give the visitors something to do and also acquaint them with our business community," Anderson said.

GUY WENTWORTH RETIRES ON MARCH 1 AS BANK MANAGER

E. Ogden Hook Appointed As Successor; Georgetown Native Who Began Business Career In 1913 To Remain In Placerville

Guy E. Wentworth, vice president and manager of the Placerville Branch of the Bank of America, has announced that he will take advantage of the bank's liberal retirement plan at the end of February, after twenty-five strenuous years of banking activity.

He will take his place, however, on the bank's advisory board and continue to help making Bank of America play a leading part in the continued development of El Dorado County.

E. Ogden Hook, at present Assistant Manager, will be advanced to the position of Manager upon Mr. Wentworth's retirement.

Mr. Wentworth is a life-long resident of El Dorado County, having been born in Georgetown. He began his banking career in May, 1913, with the A. Miersen Banking Company, which later became the El Dorado County Bank. When the latter bank was acquired by the present Bank of America organization in 1928, he became vice president of the Placerville branch. Before entering the banking field, he was for four years deputy county clerk and also served a two year term as county treasurer.

He was also President of the Chamber of Commerce for two years, has been city treasurer since 1917, has long been active in the Eagles, Native Sons and Odd Fellows.

One of his hobbies has been the encouragement of the activities of 4-H Clubs. When the branch was awarded a cash prize last year for its mineral display in the El Dorado County Fair, he set the money aside as a loan fund to assist enterprising young farmers.

E. Ogden Hook was recently elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, and is an active member in the Placerville Lions Club. He started with the former Peoples Bank in Sacramento in 1920, and after working up through the ranks was appointed Assistant Manager of Placerville Branch in December, 1931.

Mr. Wentworth said Friday morning that his plans for the future provide for giving attention to personal affairs and that he intends to remain in Placerville.

F. D. R. Favors Guam Base

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Roosevelt today said he favored the pending bill authorizing construction of naval base facilities at Guam, the far Pacific island that is within 1500 miles of Tokyo.

The Guam project is one of 12 proposed naval bases which would be authorized at a total cost of $65,000,000.

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that the bill provided for an authorization, not an appropriation. Naval authorities said that under the authorization they proposed improvements costing approximately $5,000,000.

DIA. SCOUTS LEAD COUNTY

Troop 95 Tied With Three Other Units In Area With Perfect Record For 1938

Diamond Springs troop of Boy Scouts is tied with three Sacramento troops with a rating of 10,000 points, a perfect record in fulfillment of the Golden Area Empire Council Boy Scout program for 1938.

This is according to final standings for the area, released along with preparations for the annual Council Dinner, to be held tonight at Merriam Hall at the state fair grounds at Sacramento. Approximately twenty local Scouters and their ladies will attend, led by District Chairman William T. Henderson, of Diamond Springs.

In addition to the perfect record made by the Diamond Springs troop under the leadership of Scoutmaster Charles W. Doe, Jr., three other troops of El Dorado County have made a creditable showing among the 120 troops in the council.

Placerville Troop No. 57, Wilder Immel, Scoutmaster, has a record of 9,500 points and is in third place in the area ratings and Camino troop, George Burrows, Scoutmaster, is in sixth place.

Placerville Troop No. 67, George Parnell, Scoutmaster, is in sixteenth place in the council ratings, with 6,000 points.

Troop 86, lately reorganized under sponsorship of the Placerville Lions, got started so late in the year that they are away down in the standings. However, this is a fine troop and they give promise of being heard from in a big way during this year.

CONDITIONING MAJOR ITEM IN BOOSTING BOSC SALES

Significant to winter pear growers and shippers are the oft-times casual remarks of the fruit trade, made to dealer service men employed by the Oregon-Washington-California Pear Bureau.

Of primary importance is the fact that quite a number of retailers recognize that selling green, hard pears retards their sale. Several recent dealer service reports show that retailers plan to stock enough Anjou ahead so that they can condition in advance of sale, and always have some ripened pears on hand.

Some retailers have no room to ripen pears, as per the following report on one Philadelphia store: "Retailer hasn't any place in his store to condition Bosc; feels certain if they came in an edible condition, he would do a better pear business."

One report says: "Retailer can sell any variety of winter pears, due to the fact he conditions them first."

Difficulty in pushing Bosc pears, to get the remaining stocks out of the way, is brought out in several reports. Various reports say: "Appearance goes against them." "Bosc are not ripening up properly, lately; dealer says always could sell Anjou, and he's not going to take a chance getting hurt on Bosc." "Getting too late for Bosc pears; cannot afford to offer anything that is not perfect to his trade."

The Comice variety has come in for some favorable comment by those stocking Comice, although due to the somewhat similar appearance of Anjou and Comice, some of the trade display Anjou as Comice, and vice versa. This lack of differentiation by the trade in calling pears by their right variety name—even apples and other fruits—has been noted in at least a couple of large cities. The Pear Bureau emphasizes the importance of calling a pear by its right name, and the use of the right pear in the right season, in order that Bosc can be moved out in the fall, Comice before the first of the year as much as possible, and Anjou the entire season from October till they are gone off the market.

BARTS BOLT LEAGUE

Swesey, Named Manager, Will Seek Advisory Committee Of Five Business Men

The Bartletts do not plan to play Placer-Nevada League baseball during the 1939 season.

Cliff Swesey has been named manager of the club and he will seek an advisory committee of five business men to assist him in guiding the club.

This was Swesey's announcement Friday morning following a meeting of the baseballers, called by 1938 Manager Al Prince at the Golden Barber Shop on Thursday night.

According to the new manager, the Bartletts feel that they have been at a disadvantage in several respects in the Placer-Nevada League and while these have not been sufficient to discourage them from keeping on in the league in previous years, they are, under the present circumstances, sufficient to persuade the club members not to enter the 1939 season.

"We'll play independent ball," Swesey announced, "and use all local players. No special talent. What the fans want is to see the home boys play ball and win if they can, and that is the game we hope to play."

The members of the club are also looking forward to participating as individuals in the coming softball season and were attracted to the point of view that by playing independent ball, they would have no commitment to continuing play beyond the point of public support.

Manager Swesey said he plans to be in Auburn over the weekend and will attend the meeting of Placer-Nevada league officers on Sunday to inform the league of the conclusion reached by the Bartletts.

"We have our uniforms which were given to us by various business men last season and it has been proposed that our consideration for the business houses we should change the name of the club from the Bartletts to the Merchants," Swesey said.

Swesey named some of the former managers and players and some of the "first-water" baseball fans of the community as among those he hopes to have for his advisory committee and stated that the list will be announced as soon as the committeemen have been contacted.

The interim recess is not expected until Jan. 24 or 25 because much administration legislation is being delayed until submission of the biennial budget next Monday afternoon.

Hitler Ousts Bank Chief

BERLIN, (UP)—Adolf Hitler today dismissed Dr. Hjalmar Schacht as president of the Reichsbank and named Walther Funk, minister of economics, in his place.

Funk was mandated to nazify the Reichsbank completely.

The dismissal from the key financial post of Germany's leading financier and his replacement by one of Hitler's closest confidants caused consternation in banking and industrial circles. Removal of Schacht was viewed as eliminating the conservative group once in control of Germany's financial policy. Schacht had long been regarded as a brake on the policies of Hitler and Funk in regard to financial and spending problems.

Robert Combelleck is home for the weekend from Stockton Junior College.

H. Berle Thomas, of Roseville, was a Placerville visitor Thursday evening.

DEATH TOLL IN HIGHWAY
CRASHES LOWER FOR PAST YEAR

SACRAMENTO — California's death total resulting from motor vehicle travel during 1938 will be approximately 353 below any year since 1933. Figures submitted to Chief E. Raymond Cato, California Highway Patrol, Sacramento, revealed that the previous estimate in reduction of 300 deaths for the year 1937, would be exceeded by approximately 53 on the basis of latest figures compiled by the Bureau of Statistics. The estimated number of deaths for 1938 were 2786, with 3139 for 1937. This is the lowest number of traffic fatalities in California since 1934, when 2403 persons were killed.

The party gathered around the big fireplace and the grown-ups as well as the children had a grand time. Present were Mr. and Mrs. John R. W. Wilson with John, Ray, and Bob, Mr. and Mrs. "Kip" Gowdy, Mr. and Mrs. Ward and John and Helen and Barbara Ward.

On Wednesday evening the Wards joined the Wilsons at their home and Mrs. Francis Hancock was also present.

Peter Denies His Lord

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 22 is Luke 22: 31-34; 54, 62, the Golden Text being 1 Corinthians 10: 12, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.")

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE LESSON today tells the sad story of how Simon Peter, the "beloved disciple," was disloyal to his Master.

It was like this: Jesus knew, of course, that eventually His enemies would arrest and put Him to death. The high priests were always trying to trip Him so that they would have an excuse to arrest Him. But Jesus, while always preaching what He knew to be the right, was clever in giving them just the right answers so that the priests had no excuse for taking Him into custody.

However, Jesus knew that sooner or later He would be taken, and He often referred to it in His talks with His disciples. Now He knew Peter very much better than Peter knew himself. He knew that Peter was a fine man, but that temptation might overcome him. And so He told him that Satan was trying to snare him, but that He, Christ, was praying for him.

But Peter, very sure of himself and of his love and loyalty to Christ, answered, "Lord, I am ready to go with Thee, both into prison, and to death."

Jesus probably smiled sadly as he answered: "I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me."

Then Jesus was arrested and taken to the high priest's house, and Peter followed them. The men took Him into the hall and they built a fire in the middle, thereof, and sat down and talked. Peter sat with the rest. A young girl looked at him and said, "This man also was with Him." Fearful of being taken, Peter, without thinking, answered hastily, "Woman, I know Him not."

Then a man accused him of being one of Jesus' followers, and again he said he was not; and yet a third person said, "Of a truth this fellow also was with Him: for he is a Galilean." Again Peter denied it, and just at that moment a cock crew. That sound brought to Peter's mind what Jesus had told him, and as he glanced up he saw Christ looking sadly at him, and he went out and wept. It must have been a bitter moment to him. It is so easy to talk of our love and faithfulness, but when we grow afraid for our safety or our lives, we turn cowards. This is the only time that Peter failed, and he suffered from it, probably all his life.

But you must remember, too, that Peter had fought for his Lord when the soldiers came to arrest Him. St. Luke tells it, and says that when the soldiers came Peter took a sword and sliced off the ear of one. But Jesus rebuked him for his violence and healed the man who was hurt.

Peter, too, was forgiven for this sin and lived to do a great deal of good in the world. But Judas, who betrayed his Master to the Roman soldiers, destroyed himself when he realized what he had done.

It was this same evening, earlier, that the disciples had eaten the Feast of the Passover with their Master, and Jesus had told them that "the hand of him who betrays Me is with Me on the table." He had sent His disciples ahead to prepare the feast, and when all were seated at the table He had taken bread and broken it and given it to them and said, "This is my body which is given for you. This do in remembrance of me." And taking the cup of wine, He said, "This cup is the testament in my blood, which is shed for you."

How can we lay such strong foundations for our characters that we do not fall in crises, as Peter had failed? Well, we obey the laws of bodily health to make our bodies strong and resistant to disease. And we can obey moral laws to make our souls strong. We can do as Jesus said when He told the parable of the man who built his house on the rock, digging its foundations deep, so that when the flood rose it could not be shaken.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, January 15, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text was: "In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death" (Prov. 12:28). Other Bible citations included: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. . . . In Him was life; and the life was the light of men" (John 1: 1, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase" (p.289).

tive Sons one point. It was "even Stephen" on points in the third quarter when each club added ten but the All-Stars took fifteen in the final spasm to only 3 for the Native Sons.

Euell and Elbert Gray accounted for fourteen points apiece for the All-Stars. MacIn helped them out with seven and Glenn Cribbs contributed six. Larry Cribbs cashed in on his only free throw to complete the scoring.

Butts topped the scoring for the Native Sons with ten. Quiberg got four, Schmershal, Baer and Casebeer two each.

The Forest Service was out in front 10 to 3 at the end of the first quarter, but the next time they stopped to rest, it was 12 and 12. Everybody held a huddle and the strategy of the Twenty-Thirtians gained them but four points in the third skirmish while the Forest Service took seven to make it 19 to 16. Each club hooked six points before the final whistle.

It was a fast game, such as the fans like to see, with Dunkle getting twelve points for the Forest Service to be high-point man of the night. Liddicoet took eight points, making four out of five free throws. Kincaid and Cotter had two each and Valley made his only free toss.

Murdock and Reeg took ten apiece for the Twenty-Thirtians and Harris added a field goal.

Sports Parade

By HENRY MCLEMORE

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Are the professional tennis matches between Ellsworth Vines and Donald Budge strictly on the level?

This question has been put to me dozens of times since the two Californians started on the tour that will take them to most of the towns in the United States big enough to have city limits and a fire chief. There seems to be a feeling that Ellsworth and Donald have an agreement to keep the series fairly level and not let one player get so far ahead as to make the public lose interest.

A year ago I was asking this same question myself, but I didn't turn to any such unkind source as H. McLemore. With the same tact that has made me unpopular in more than one circle I went directly to the men who were settling last year's world championship, Mr. Vines and Fred Perry.

With a merry "Hello," and "Do you fellows frame these tennis games so they come out even?" I hinted at what I wanted to know. Ellsworth and Fred caught on with commendable alacrity and quickly set me straight. No, they didn't deliberately maintain a balance of power. Each played his best at all times, and for these reasons:

1. A certain percentage of each game was set aside to be given to the winner of the series.
2. They knew Budge planned to turn professional and that the winner of their series would get first crack at him.
3. Each one of them wanted to be known as the world's champion professional player.

In other words, the top man was sure of more money and a greater reputation as a tennis player. But the chief reason Ellsworth and Mr. Perry kept their play on the level was the natural honesty of the men themselves. They are very high type of spokesmen and not to be confused with certain of the wrestling, boxing and horse racing gentry.

What held good for Perry and Vines undoubtedly holds good for Vines and Budge. Budge is every bit the fine sportsman that Perry is, and probably wouldn't know how to throw a match if he wanted to. He has been playing his best game ever since he was a youngster, and I have no doubt but that is what he does every time he plays today.

As to the series staying fairly even, why shouldn't it? There is very little to choose between the games of the great tennis players.

The series between Vines and Don is strictly one of power versus steadiness. Vines is a constant seeker of perfection. He allows no margin of safety. He shoots for the top of the net and the very lines themselves. When he is in top form no tennis player who ever lived can beat him, but of course it is impossible for him to be at the zenith of his form all the time. When he is slightly off, he will make more errors than an ordinary player.

Budge's game, while not as spectacular, is much sounder. Budge's peak is never as great as Vines', but his average is much better. In other words, he is never as good or never as bad as Vines.

Take it from noney McLemore, who has really gone into the matter, the pro tennis boys play on the level.

To Whom It Concerns:
I am more than pleased to testify to anyone interested that I have obtained phenomenal results from Dr. Henry Yee's Herb Treatments. I am a man 73 years old and suffered with severe back and abdominal pains for a long period. I tried several methods to obtain relief, but was unsuccessful until I started Dr. Yee's system of Herb Treatments. I obtained relief after the first treatment and as I continued the course my condition improved. Today I feel well and robust for a man of my age. And I give full credit to Dr. Yee.

THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

They are all coming West, writers we mean, even the titled ones. The grand Duchess Marie talked in San Francisco and Berkeley, the Countess of Listowel one of Europe's outstanding women journalists will give several talks around the bay. Topping them all though is Somerset Maugham who is not talking anywhere but is visiting the playwright Eugene O'Neill. Did you know that Eugene O'Neill has an estate near Walnut Creek? One of these days we are going to peek over his back fence and see what we can see. No, we don't figure he will find us and be flattered by our worshipful attitude and ask us in to tea. He will probably set the dogs on us.

You may have noted that many books are being written about living in the country, as though no one had ever lived there before. Some of the books, however, come highly recommended. We have been wanting to get at two of them a long time "A Home in the Country" by F. F. Van de Water and its sequel published a few months ago "We're Still in the Country." Mr. Van de Water's country ventures take place in Vermont. Another book we want to read is "The Van der Meer's Brown Hills" by Mrs. Van der Meer's ranch is in Southern California and like the majority of California ranches it hasn't been blessed with milk and honey.

"Enchanted Acre" by Gove Hambridge was a great favorite a while back and so was his other book "Time to Live." The story of the reclamation of a small New England Farm is told in Lucile Greben's "Under Green Apple Boughs," a book that is far more entertaining than the average novel. Another book widely read is M. M. Rawson's "Sing, Old House," which goes fully into the subject of restoring an old house.

Is there any one who doesn't dream of buying a decrepit old place somewhere and doing it over, even though those who have had the experience say "Never again!" One of the very best of the recent books which made a grand lark of the job was Elizabeth Etner's "On Gilbert Head." Mrs. Etner and her husband, Stephen Etner, an artist, bought one of those rocky islands off the coast of Maine with a battered old house on it. They worked like beavers, building a boat landing, building roads, tearing down partitions, scraping paint for days on end, clearing land for a garden. And what a glorious time they had while they worked. Mrs. Etner kept a faithful record of their days so that when they were old they would know what a good time they had when they were young. In spite of the hard rough work, she kept all the amenities she had learned in her easier life. She writes somewhere in the journal: "I try to dress nice and look pretty about this house of ours to do it honor and I always dress for dinner in the evening to be gracious to Stephen."

In books about the country it isn't enough to go into ecstasies over the broccoli bed or to coyly confuse the kitten with its smelly cousin. The books about country life that seem to survive are those in which the writer establishes a point of view about living. Zephine Humphrey has written some fine books about country living. It is entirely probable that a woman like Mrs. Humphrey would have worked out her philosophy of living (excuse the unusual phrase) in a city hotel or a tenement house, but the country background, Vermont again, has mellowed it. Mrs. Humphrey recognized the high and holy mission of hard work.

"Why should we relegate to others the essential duties of life?" she asks. "Cooking, cleaning, serving with one's own hands are the acts which bind us most closely with humanity."

In "Winterwise" one of Mrs. Humphrey's best books, she sums up her requirements for the good life: "Love, work, home, books, beautiful surroundings, friendly neighbors, a sense of time and space and of that ineffable something which some of us call the presence of God and which, however, we may interpret it, all of us recognize."

David Grayson whose adventures in contentment have brought solace to many people, has established a sound point of view by means of country living. In his book "A Countryman's Year," he writes, "Working in my garden or with my bees wherein I live completely and intensely in the task, in the thought, in the beauty of the moment, I dismiss the past and the future has no terrors for me since I never try to live in it until it arrives."

Mr. Grayson has no need for the distraction of cities or the stimulation of travel. He maintains that "It isn't the multiplication of our feelings that increases our lives but the penetration of them." And if you can't find the book you want about living in the country, write one. That is what ever so many people are doing.

Slenderizing Dress

Even the slim sister seeks the slenderizing styles these days, and she of overweight, by all means, should. Manufacturers are aware of this and have learned to make a "heavy" appear sylphlike. The streamline is the thing.

The stout woman should choose plain, excellent materials with a dull finish. Shiny satin makes one look larger. Dark colors, as navy, black or brown, do not magnify the size as do light or bright ones. Figures should be avoided, except very small, all-over patterns or dots if one must have them.

Narrow bands or stripes, up and down the front or back are good. There should be an unbroken line from neck to hemline.

Circular skirts are to be avoided.

The more fun you've had over the holidays, the more your budget is probably strained. But, here's one place you can recoup without cutting a single item from your family food buying. Look at the values in fine foods! They're typical of what you're offered this week — and every week — at RALEY'S COMPLETE FOOD STORE. And another thing, folks should rally to the assistance of the Wooden Box Promotion's plea for help in connection with the shipment of oranges in cotton sacks instead of Wooden Boxes. Prices EFFECTIVE JANUARY 19 TO JANUARY 25, inclusive.
